Watch the latest Face2Face conversation

The latest CMU Face2Face event took place on February 11. It was an amazing time discussing a topic that to many of us prefer to avoid. If you missed the event or would like to watch it again you can do so by visiting www.commonword.ca/go/1742.

What does it mean to be a good ally to Indigenous Peoples? This toolkit is aimed at people who want to get into this work, or who already are and want to become a better ally. Broken down into three steps that non-Indigenous people can take to have a better relationship with Indigenous people, it is an ideal starting point or next step. Bill C-262

Bill C-262 has passed 3rd reading in the House of Commons and is now up for debate in the Senate. The Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada has stated that the adoption and implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP) is the key to genuine reconciliation between Indigenous and Settler peoples in Canada (Call to Action #43). Bill C-262 can help make that happen.

The Ferment Podcast

The Ferment is a new podcast from the minds of Marcus Peter Rempel, Alana Levandoski, Samantha Klassen, and Matt Wiebe. Together they enter into conversation with peace-waging “granarchists” like Kathy Kelly, street level theologians like Jonathan Wilson-Hartgrove, brilliant priests like James Alison, big-hearted artists like Steve Bell, and blessing-centric pastors like Danielle Schroyer. Through it all they seek to share the fact that something bigger, deeper, and truer than the Big Fight is taking shape. Listen online at www.commonword.ca/go/1744.

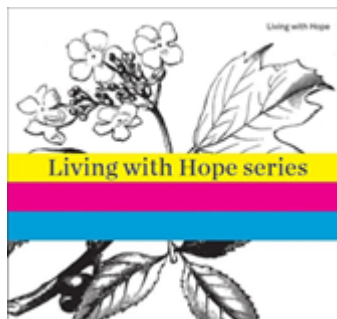

Lament over Sexual Violence

This special worship service by Val Smith of CMU is designed as a readers theatre of 5 voices (and 6 extras). It names and laments several "untold" biblical stories of sexual violence (the Levite's Concubine, Bathsheba and Tamar) and acknowledges contemporary realities of abuse.

Living with Hope

Books in this series tackle complex problems such as addiction, unemployment, pregnancy loss, serious illness, trauma, and grief - and encourage individuals, their families, and those who care for them. The series is bound together by a common message: you are not alone. There is hope.

The series is also a valuable resource for pastoral and spiritual care providers in faith-based settings. Parish pastors, lay ministers, chaplains, counsellors, and other staff and volunteers can draw on these volumes to offer skilled and compassionate guidance to individuals in need of hope.
